

“It was really rewarding to see the power of collaborative conversations between our customers and colleagues from Tarmac and wider CRH businesses. The expertise and passion displayed throughout the discussions showed that together we will develop innovative solutions to address our shared challenges.”

Andrew Rowley, national commercial director at Tarmac

Solutions

Responsible Supply Chain

Next Gen 2030+

Tarmac hosted an exclusive ‘Next Gen 2030+’ event in July 2023, sharing what the construction industry can expect in the years to come and how our business is working with partners, customers, and suppliers to shape the future.

Around 120 key customer representatives and supply chain partners attended the event, held at the Tarmac-owned Panshanger Park in Hertfordshire, including National Highways, Kier, Skanska, Shell, and Renault Trucks.

Joined by colleagues from CRH, attendees gathered to hear more about the company’s 2030+ strategy, why digitisation and diversity of thinking are so important, and the role that alliances and cooperation within the building materials industry can play in helping to bring to market stronger and more dynamic solutions to societal challenges like climate change.

The event also saw the formal launch of Tarmac’s Levelling Up Impact Report, in partnership with the Purpose Coalition.

